

RACGP ACADEMIC POST

UNIVERSITY OF MELBOURNE
DEPARTMENT OF GENERAL PRACTICE

DR ROISIN BHAMJEE

I was keen to complete an extended skills post as an academic registrar with the RACGP to gain experience and confidence in research and teaching. The post was appealing to me as it gave the unique opportunity to do research in an interest area of mine through a supportive university environment whilst in a paid position working towards my training time in completing fellowship.

Through the academic post, I have had the opportunity to develop my teaching skills and learn how to manage a small research project (registrars can complete their own project or join an existing research project) plus enabled me to incorporate an academic role into my day to day clinical work. I have made lasting friendships and received mentoring regarding not only the academic post but also future career plans.

I would strongly encourage any registrar thinking about research/ teaching in their future careers to apply!
